Production Notes

The \TeX\ source code for each article in this issue of \textit{TUGboat} was transmitted via network or floppy diskette to the editors, who then used \texttt{PC\TeX} running on a Zenith H-386 and an IBM PC-compatible 386 to generate \texttt{dvi} files. These files were then shipped to the American Mathematical Society via modem, and final copy was produced on the Society's APS \texttt{\mu-5}.

A few items were produced locally by authors and then mailed to the editors for incorporation in articles. Personnel at the Math Society cut these figures and pictures into place. The output devices used for these items were:

- HP LaserJet:
  - Vulis, \textit{\texttt{VT\TeX} enhancements to the \TeX language}, appendix only.
- Apple LaserWriter II:
  - Beck and Siegel, \textit{TransFig: Portable graphics for \TeX}, figures only.
- Linotype L200P PostScript (1270dpi):
  - Adams, \textit{Problems on the \TeX/PostScript/graphics interface}, pictures only.
- Shaken SAPLS-Laura laser phototypesetter (1626dpi):
  - Hamano, \textit{Vertical typesetting with \TeX}, page from \textit{Descartes' Dream} only.
